Pine Bluff Bank Checks Run; Seek Source of Story

Small Depositors Call at Bank to Cash in On Savings Accounts

REWARD IS OFFERED

Bank Offers Reward Leading to Identity of Person Starting Rumor

PINE BLUFF, Sept. 25.—(AP)—The Merchants and Planters Bank and Trust Company, here, who experienced a small run yesterday afternoon and last night, opened their doors this morning to less than a dozen persons, mostly negroes, waiting to withdraw their deposits.

The early deposits were confined mostly to small savings deposits and other small accounts.

Additional funds were brought from Little Rock as a precautionary measure, in case of a run but were not found necessary. $500,000 brought last night was not used.

Bank officials stood by calm and smiling this morning, believing that all seriousness of the run had passed. Deposits during the first half hour or so of the morning were normal and far exceeding the withdrawals.

The bank remained open until 10:30 p. m. last night to pay all depositors desiring their funds. The run is attributed to false rumors among the negroes, mostly, that the bank would close its doors today.

$1,000 has been offered as a reward leading to the identity of the person who started the false rumor.

Kiwanis To Make Good Will Trips

W. S. Atkins, Ned Stewart Speak at Luncheon Here

Plans for resuming good will trips into neighboring communities were undertaken at the regular Thursday noon luncheon of the Kiwanis club at Hotel Barlow. A schedule of visits is to be arranged at the board of directors meeting tonight.

Ned Stewart, Louisville attorney, and associate of W. E. Atkins, was a guest of the club. He recalled the former days of rivalry between the two towns over baseball teams, a friendly attitude which has disappeared with the coming of the all-weather road between these two places. He told how Hope had a reputation for friendliness, and that he was always glad to come here.

Mr. Atkins, who suggested resumption of the good will trips, pointed out that the club had greater opportunity for service to the community in these times than ever before. He declared that there was an overproduction of cotton. If all who need cotton clothing and other finished cotton products could afford to buy them, the farmer who raises his own food and feed, and who has a scientific plan of fertilizing generally speaking, is in fairly good circumstances at this time, he said. "At least he is actually in a position to hold his cotton for a better price, and to borrow money without mortgaging his next year's crop. Many farmers have been looking for farm relief which would take the place of honest effort, just as many townspeople plan on securing a soft government or state job, or in making their fortunes through get-rich-quick schemes. For every one man who makes a strike without planned and constructive work, there are one thousand who have lost their savings. Nor can farmers be prosperous until they get out of debt and until they make their living at home, regardless of the price nor condition of crops."

Corn Liquor Baths Lead to Jail Doors

Throw Out the Life Line Replaces 'Sweet Adeline'

JONESBORO, Sept. 25.—(UP)—Corn whiskey baths are a great cure for what ails you, thinks Raymond Martin, but they won't keep you out of jail.

Martin was arrested on charges of possessing corn whiskey and home brew.

"Sure, judge," Martin explained, giving sage advice along medical lines. "We tried everything to relieve my sister, but nothing did any good. So finally we started giving her corn liquor baths."

"And now she is well."

"Well, well," the judge answered. "So for you and some time in jail. See if you can't think up some more remedies."

Hope Given Good Shot To Defeat Magnolia

1930 Bobcats Confident of Victory in First Home Game, Friday Morning at Fair Grounds—39 Players on the Local Squad

The Hope High School Bobcats will meet the football team of Magnolia High School at Fair Park Friday morning in their second clash of the season. Due to the college game between Texarkana Junior college and Magnolia A. and M., in the afternoon, the game is scheduled for 10:30 o'clock in the morning.

The Bobcats, jubilant over their victory from Ashdown last week, are going into the game with the anticipation and the determination to win. Many times before, Hope high school has begun a game with the feeling that victory would be practically impossible; but there is no such feeling among the student body of the school this year. Both the town and the school are behind the team as never before. This is due both to the efforts of the coach and to the players who are putting out their efforts to produce a winning team.

Coach Wilkins has two line-ups in mind for the game tomorrow. One is composed of his veterans of the gridiron and the other principally of new material, most of whom have never played football prior to this season. The coach says further that some of the old players are going to have to fight to retain their place on the regular team as several of the newcomers are going after their laurels.

The strength of this year's team is demonstrated in the fact that every one of the 39 players carried to Ashdown last Friday saw action in the game. The starting line-up, early in the game ran up a lead that was safe for the coach to let stand and send in some of his less experienced men. This he did after taking out his star line plunger and most of the backfield. The improvised team proved equal to the occasion and while they did no further scoring they prevented the opposition from gaining a point.

This was doing remarkably well for players in their first football game.

The starting line-up for tomorrow's game will be one of the following, the coach is undecided which; but says it will likely be the first mentioned, composed entirely of his new men. The line-up follows: Sissell, Booth, Breeding, Chamberlain, Whitley, Adams, Jacks, Fields, McKee, Johnson and Hargis. The second line composed of both vets and new men is: Fritthett, Brown, Reeves, Schooley, Jones, Mauldin, Wray, Harrell, Moser and Bacon.

Many Poultry Awards At Fair

Bulletins

LITTLE ROCK, Sept. 25.—(AP)—Election commissioners for Hempstead county, named by the state department today were: D. B. Thompson and Otis Johnson, Democrats. W. M. Brummett, Republican.

SEARCHY, Sept. 25.—The Temple Glen was destroyed by fire early today. Loss is estimated at $15,000. Cause of the blaze has not been determined.

LITTLE ROCK, Sept. 25.—(AP)—A young negro, who gave his name as Govan Harris, of Helena was brought to the State Penitentiary this morning by Sheriff J. C. Barlow. Harris is under arrest in connection with the attack of a 13-year-old school girl in West Helena last Thursday.

Preliminary Trial For Six Men Today

Men Who Are Charged With $25,000 Robbery Plot on Trial Today

AUGUSTA, Sept. 25.—(AP)—Although scheduled for this morning the preliminary hearing in the cases of six men held for attempting to extort $25,000 from W. N. Gregory last Sunday night, has been postponed until this afternoon.

A large crowd assembled at the court house here this morning. Greek Rice, attorney from Clarksville, Miss., counsel for Thomas McCloud, who was brought here yesterday by officers from his home at Clarksville, arrived today by airplane.

Exposure of the plot has caused a sensation here. Hugh Lindsey, formerly a barber in this city was held by Mr. and Mrs. Gregory until help was summoned Sunday night when he called at their home and demanded the $25,000 at the point of a gun.

Those under arrest are: Thomas McCloud, Hugh Lindsey, G. O. Cain, Earl Sheppard, F. L. Foamon, and Pete Gaines.

Negro Is Killed By Memphis Policeman

Officer Says He Fired at Black as He Lunged Toward Him

MEMPHIS, Sept. 25.—(AP)—Luther Munson, 31-year-old negro of Pinkney, Ark., was shot and killed at police headquarters here today by a policeman who had arrested him on a cotton stealing charge.

Patrolman W. A. Stocks, said he shot the negro as he lunged toward him in an effort to escape.

Police Chief, Will Lee, said Stocks fired in self defense.

Munson, Joe Robinson and Charles Smith were arrested when the officer found a quantity of loose cotton in their automobile.

The manager of the plantation on which the three lived, who lives in Memphis said that the cotton was stolen.

Smith is said to have quoted Munson as saying, "They have the goods on me, but I'll make them kill me before taking me to jail."

Institute To Open Here This Sunday

Three-Day Session Will Begin at Methodist Church

A three-day Sunday School Institute will open at First Methodist church Sunday. It was announced today by the pastor, the Rev. Francis A. Buddin.

The institute will be in charge of the Rev. Clem Baker, conference Sunday School superintendent, and Miss Fae McLaue, conference elementary superintendent. The Rev. Mr. Baker will preach at both hours Sunday, and at 2:30 Sunday afternoon he will meet all of the local Sunday School workers for a conference at the church. Miss McLaue will also be present at that meeting.

Plans for the remaining days of the institute will be announced at the initial session Sunday afternoon, and all workers are urged to attend, the Rev. Mr. Buddin said.

Parnell Assails 20th Amendment

Governor Is Guest of Two Clubs at Helena Wednesday

HELENA, Sept. 25.—Governor Parnell, who was a guest of the Twentieth Century and the Rotary Clubs Wednesday, discussed the way in which Arkansas has led the way in a new road program, by assuming the bonded indebtedness of counties that had improved districts. He scored the proposed 20th amendment, saying that it would place the Highway Commission in the hands of politicians and disrupt the Martineau plan. Members of the committee that had the greatest political "pull," he said, He said under the new plan which provides for the members to be paid on the elective plan, $2,000 per year, it would be impossible to obtain men who would be qualified.

He defended the Hall income tax bill, saying that it was necessary to finance the new state hospital, and provide for the Booneville sanatorium and state schools.

He said bonds already had been issued for these purposes, and expressed the belief that if this law was repealed, it would be necessary to increase the property tax.

75 Men Take Negro From Sheriff Today

Negro Lynched, Dragged Through Streets of Georgia Town

THOMASVILLE, Ga., Sept. 25.—(AP)—Willie Kirkland, 20-year-old negro, said to have been identified by a nine-year-old school girl as the man who attacked her was lynched here today.

Kirkland was a member of a chain gang, serving time for horse stealing. He was taken from the custody of Sheriff Gordon E. Davis and several deputies as they were taking him to a nearby town for safe keeping by a band of men numbering between 50 and 75. The negro was hanged to the limb of a tree in Magnolia Garden, a suburb about a mile from Thomasville.

After hanging the negro his body was tied to the rear of an automobile and dragged through the business section of the town, after which it was deposited on the court house lawn.

Scout Master Henry Haynes announces that there will not be a Court of Honor Friday night, but that there will be a regular meeting of the Scouts instead.

This meeting will begin at 7:30 and will be held at the Methodist church.

Twin Contest To Be Played Friday On Fair Grounds

Program Tonight Advanced From 8 O'Clock to 7 O'Clock

THIS, RAILROAD DAY

Games Friday Hope vs. Magnolia—Magnolia vs. Texarkana

Bulletin
Emma Lou Hoveland, of Nevada county, was adjudged the grand champion baby in the Baby Show at the Southwest Arkansas Fair. She captured first prize for Nevada county, and went on to win the sweepstakes.

Other first prize-winners in the baby show for the various counties were:
LaFayette county: Frances Maxine Powell.
Howard county: Lois Mae Stewart.
Hempstead: Herbert Hoover Hockett.

Starts at 7 Tonight
The program at the fair grounds tonight has been advanced one hour and will start at 7 o'clock instead of 8.

Tonight marks the feature fireworks exhibition of the week, the attraction being "Admiral Byrd at the South Pole." Other entertainment features tonight are: Upton-Whiteside troupe in wire act; C. L. Raum and his whips; Willie Karbe and girl in high trapeze act.

The largest crowd in the history of the fair attended the third day program at the Southwest Arkansas Fair Wednesday night.

Railroad day today, and Education day Friday, are expected to swell the total attendance to something like normal. The first two opening days fell below last year, but attendance Wednesday was close to the third day average for preceding fairs.

Wednesday night saw the completion of returns on the judging of exhibits in the Poultry Show, which continues to draw large attendance, being the first poultry division in the history of the local fair, and the equal of the Arkansas State Fair in the opinion of visiting poultry fanciers.

Jurors Clear Man On Murder Charge

Pine Bluff Youth Is Freed In Connection With Sister's Death

PINE BLUFF, Sept. 25.—(AP)—Ross Deviney, 23, well known local accountant, was cleared Wednesday of any connection with the death of his sister, Mrs. Lillian Dobbins, 20, by the Jefferson county grand jury.

Deviney had been held in $3000 bond. Deviney was arrested on the night of August 22. Officers said he told them he killed his sister, whose body was found lying in a gutter in front of her home. Deviney later repudiated this statement saying he made it to shield his sister from stigma, he believed attached to suicide. He said she swallowed poison, and this statement was confirmed by a report of hospital officials.

He defended the Hall income tax bill, saying that it was necessary to finance the new state hospital, and provide for the Booneville sanatorium and state schools.

He said bonds already had been issued for these purposes, and expressed the belief that if this law was repealed, it would be necessary to increase the property tax.

Mangled Body Is Found on Railroad

A Fire and The Censors

THE idea of censorship of any kind is and always has been repugnant to the American people. However, the nation willingly accepts a good many modifications of the idea among them a state censorship for movies. This movie censorship is accepted chiefly on the theory that children would get some unwholesome notions put into their heads if someone did not go over the films pretty carefully.

However, now and then the movie censors do their best to prove that this form of censorship can be no less hateful than any other kind. The Ohio board of movie censors has just done it in a thoroughgoing manner.

A few months ago the Hollywood producers sent out a picture called "The Big House." This picture deals with a penitentiary riot, and presents its story in such a way as to imply that the keepers of penitentiaries are not always guiltless when trouble comes within the walls.

The picture has been or is being shown in every other state in the union; but the Ohio board, holding it up for several months, has finally ruled definitely that it cannot be shown. It adds that the same ruling will apply hereafter to all gangland, racketeering movies, as they are bad for children.

So far, so good; but the curious may remember that Ohio had a very dreadful fire and riot in its own penitentiary last spring. Three hundred and twenty convicts were burned to death—and "The Big House" has a story that is strongly reminiscent of the Ohio penitentiary's tragedy.

Recalling that fact, this bit of censorship takes on a different light. It looks very strikingly like an attempt on the part of politicians to keep the people of Ohio from being reminded of last spring's dreadful holocaust, due chiefly to official fumbling and neglect.

In such a case movie censorship becomes utterly insupportable. If there is no other way to protect our children from salacious pictures than by a state censorship, well and good—we'll probably have to put up with it. But if the censorship can be turned into an instrument whereby politicians can keep the public from being reminded of unpleasant facts, it has more than outlived its usefulness.

Cotton Firms vs. Co-ops

MEMPHIS, cotton firms received editorial praise from the Commercial Appeal Sunday for offering cotton growers a plan of handling cotton for sale on call which the Memphis newspaper describes as a better proposition than any available through the farmers' co-operative organizations.

In brief, if the Commercial Appeal is correct, the Memphis concerns will advance to growers a full 100 per cent of the present value of their cotton, give the grower the benefit of any improvement in the market between now and next spring, and make no charge whatever for storage, insurance or selling.

Really, it is almost too good to be true. These cotton firms in effect offer not only to finance the farmer in holding his cotton for a hoped for advance in price, but to make no charge for this service and no charge for handling the cotton and selling it. Unless there is a nigger in the woodpile somewhere these firms are offering to work for something less than nothing.

Granting that it is all as pretty as it sounds, the idea of it, of course, it to take a loss in the hope of breaking the co-operatives by giving them a kind of competition they can't meet. We can't think of a better reason why cotton growers should maintain their co-operatives as a vigorous and effective factor in the market. It is worth noting that this year, the first year that the co-operatives have been in a position to really do something, is also the first year of such unprecedented liberality on the part of private cotton firms. Apparently if the co-operatives can't save the farmer they can at least make their private competitors do something.—Blytheville Courier News

The Governor Who Also Ran

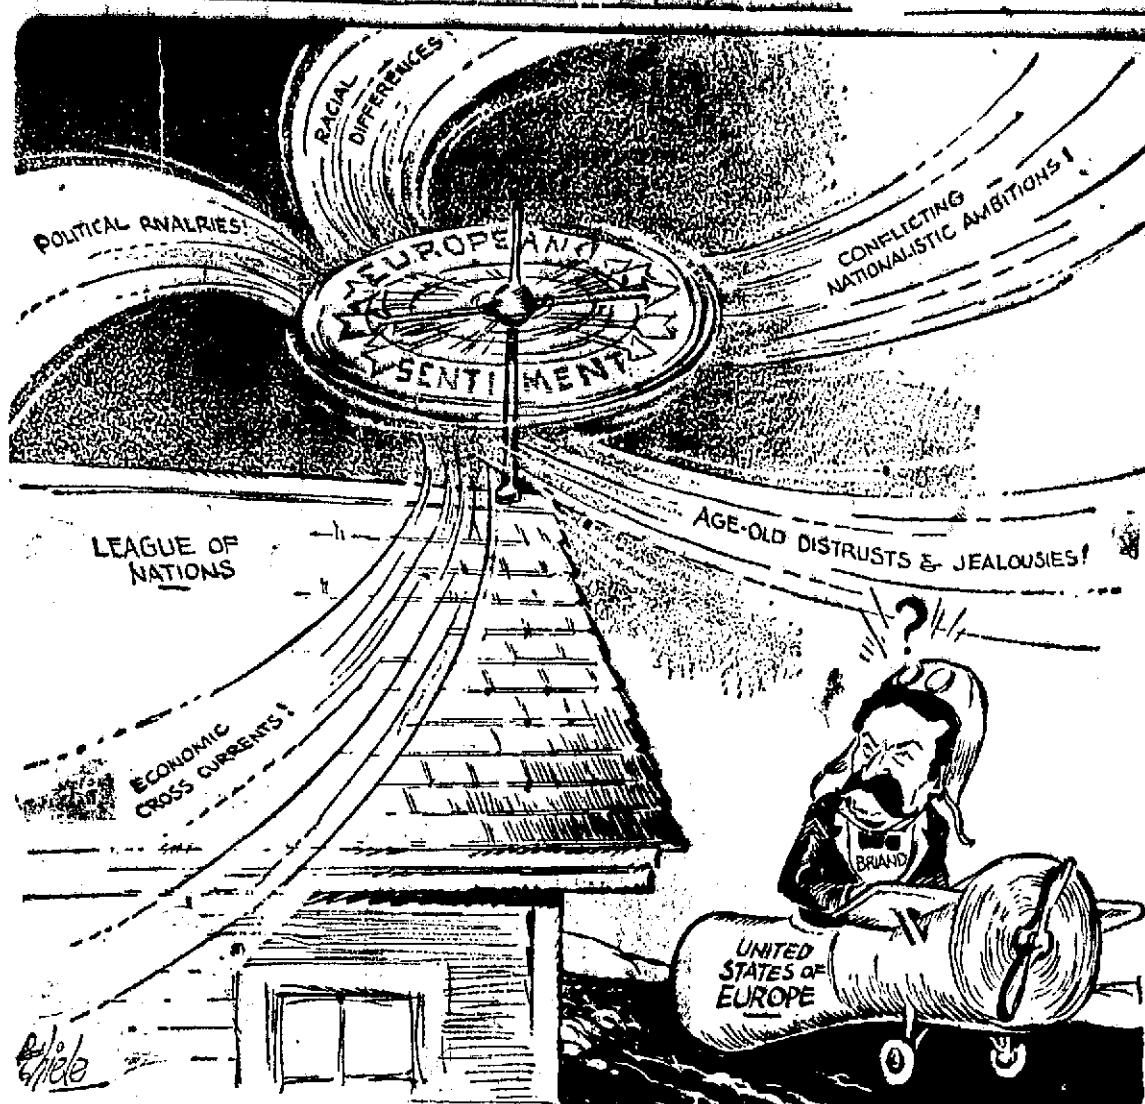

I TOOK a journey, and I came unto the land of Arkansas. And there I abode certain days . . . And I sat upon the steps of the big hotel and I was introduced unto several men. And one of those men was introduced to me as Governor. . . . And I sought to know the reason why he was called Governor.

And thus it was told unto me, and whether it be true or not, this is as I heard it.

In Arkansas they think it unseemly that a Democratic Governor should be elected without competition. Wherefore do they nominate a Republican as well as a Democrat. And the Democrat gets the Office, but the Republican is known thereafter as Governor.

Now the more I thought about this method the better I liked it, for it seemed unto me to proceed from a fine sense of courtesy, that the man who is called upon to set up the pins for a successful Democratic should come out of the Campaign at least with a title. And though I have traveled in all the states of this Great and Happy Land, and have heard unsuccessful candidates called by many and varied names, I recall no other so courteous a custom as this of which I was informed when I was an Arkansas traveler.—Safed the Sage, in the Congregationalist.

Daily WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON—At least a dozen senators will be leaving Congress when their terms expire next March. Most of them are elderly and of the type usually described as conservative or reactionary. Generally speaking, they are younger and more active if not more progressive men will succeed them.

The liberal, progressive forces in politics have not lost anyone from the Senate as a result of primary defeats or retirement. They stand to gain somewhat in strength with the elections. None of the members of the old farm bloc or of the Republican progressive group has been defeated in his campaign for renomination and the candidates supported by organized labor have usually been successful.

Although the close of the primary season still shows no sign of a significant progressive revival in national politics, there is considerable evidence on which an argument might be based that voters have lost some of the apathy induced by prosperity and are more inclined to look askance at the administration and regular Republicanism of the brand offered by men now holding office.

Six Republicans Lose

The Republican senators who have lost their jobs in the primaries are Charles S. Deneen of Illinois and Joseph R. Grundy of Pennsylvania. Republican senators who announced their retirement were Gould of Maine, Baird of New Jersey, Gillett of Massachusetts, Goff of West Virginia, Sullivan of Wyoming and Phillips of Colorado. It has been said of these six gentlemen that they decided to quit because they were convinced they couldn't be nominated and elected this year, but none gave any such reason.

The Democratic senators defeated in primaries were Farnsworth McLeod of Minnesota, North Carolina, Joseph E. Ransdell of Louisiana and Cole Blease of South Carolina.

It so happens that all these men are in their sixties or seventies except Baird, who is only 59. It so happens that there is hardly an ounce of "progressivism" in the lot. By and large, they are a group of stand-patters, old guardmen, high protectionists and Democrats who have been willing to vote with Republicans on any question involving a social or economic problem.

Age probably isn't a prime factor in driving them out of politics. Borah of Idaho, Norris of Nebraska, Walsh of Montana and other men, in their sixties have all had their renominations.

But the victims were all set in their ways and they were the type of legislators who believe things are pretty fine as they are, and that it is better to leave most things unchanged. And that, as nearly as one can guess, was why they represented shining targets wherever restless voters imagined that they would like to have a change.

Long Gave Good Show

The rough and tumble career of Governor Huey P. Long of Louisiana probably appealed to such restlessness as possessed the voters of his state. Voters have often supported candidates for no apparent good reason except that the candidate knew how to give them a good show. Long, it appears, managed to convince the ordinary voters of his state that he was one of their own kind and that his heart was beating for them. Ransdell, whom he defeated in the primary, was safe, sane, conservative and colorless, but he had a good record for faithfully serving Louisiana.

Blease, who has been licked by former Congressman James P. Ryones, has also put on many shows in public life, not always edifying ones. But he wasn't punished for that. His constituents doubtless would have stood for his pro-lynching stand and his eccentricities, but the fact that he was only beaten by a few thousand votes indicates that the opposition of organized labor was really the decisive factor in his defeat.

The Philpotts candidate for the Republican senatorial nomination was beaten in Colorado, suggesting that Philpotts' own withdrawal was strategic.

So great the cost of follies slight,
So cruel is the throng,

Silly Season In U. S. Is Duplicated

Stunts of Foolish Nature Also Put on Across the Atlantic

By ROBERT C. DOWSON
United Press Staff Correspondent
LONDON, Sept. 24. (UP)—The American "silly season," with its tree-sitting, endurance, bicycle riding, etc. first auto driving, peanut pushing and the like, has a serious rival in England's crazy stunting and endurance tests.

British newspapers while daily ridiculing the activities of American competitors in farcical stunts, have completely overlooked the numerous pointless competitions indulged in daily in various parts of Britain.

The scene for many of these stunts is the famous 52-mile stretch of road from London to Brighton, the popular holiday resort on the south coast. Much is the money that has changed hands as the result of bets decided over this highway. The stunts usually take the form of walking to Brighton pushing a baby carriage with a man seated inside, trundling a wagon wheel, balancing a barrel on the head, rolling a barrel along the road or pulling a hand-cart loaded with so many pounds of vegetables.

Channel swimming comes in for a good share of criticism from many quarters; where it is claimed that the long, weary plod against winds, tides and currents leads the swimmer nowhere except, perhaps to an earlier grave.

Theatre first nights always supply a good opportunity for the endurance stunts. Many seats in London theatres are not bookable in advance and the stunts take a great delight in getting their pictures in the newspapers. "Queueing up for seats at the so-and-so Theatre." They go well equipped with portable seats, rugs and cushions and occasionally tip a small boy to sit on the portable seat while they take a turn around the block to stretch their legs. Similar scenes are witnessed at all the big sporting meets, including the classic Wimbledon lawn tennis championships.

Six-day bicycle races are not popular here. An American tried the experiment a few years ago but he went bankrupt in the attempt. The recent final cricket test match, however drew some 20,000 fans to sit through six days of scorching sunshine, cold, drizzling rain and disappointing scoring by the home country.

Then, of course, there are the fans who pay good money to see Phil Scott's canvas-lying exhibitions.

Construction On Rice Mill Started

New Plant Will Increase Monthly Payroll of Jonesboro

JONESBORO, Ark., Sept. 24. (AP)—Construction has started on Jonesboro's new $125,000 rice mill.

The main milling building will be of four stories, and will contain the latest milling machinery.

The Jonesboro Rice Milling Company, composed principally of Memphis men, recently was organized. The company has announced that it will enter the rice markets immediately, purchasing this season's rice which will be stored until the mill gets into operation.

Completion of the mill is expected about November 1.

HOOKS AND SLIDES by William Braucher

An Umpire's Opinion
In the lobby of a Detroit hotel I met Umpire Bill McGowan, the wizard from Wilmington, who calls balls and strikes and occasionally thumps the boys out of the American League baseball pastures. We got to talking about young pitchers.

An umpire, looking at pitchers day after day, judging their work, comes to know in most cases what the next ball is going to be. Seeing the same stuff day in, day out, an umpire usually can tell whether or not the young man from Muckersville is going to make the grade.

Throws a "Downer"
Bill regards Tom Bridges, the young Tiger rookie, as having all the qualifications for becoming a star within a year or two.

"Saw him beat the White Sox, 4 to 1," said Bill. "Has a deceptive delivery. His curve ball is a beauty. Dazzling fast ball, too. He throws what the batters call a 'downer.' In the old days they called it an outdrop. Also has a slider like Wilcy Moore's. George Smith says the kid can't miss being a great pitcher. Only 22 years old. Came up from Evansville, I understand."

"One of the best young left-handers in the league is this Seede Caraway of the White Sox. Wraps himself into a pretzel before letting go of the ball. If Letty Grove had a delivery like that lad, he would win 35 games every year." Just a kid, fresh from the farm, but has the stuff. Gave the Indians three hits in 13 innings. Beat the A's and Yanks, too.

Whitely Wyatt of the Tigers is another man to watch. Had a sore arm nearly all season, but showed Bucky Harris enough in his few starts to make him a regular next year.

Liska Improves
A D LISKA of the Senators is improving all the time. He'll be going in for his regular turn next year sure.

"The A's came up with a couple of peaches. Tom Mahaffey and Red Perkins. This Mahaffey won a row. Perkins, no kin to Cy, is a rangy left-handed curve

Californian Identified as Another By Newspaper

PARIS, Sept. 24.—(UP)—Following the sensational arrest of Charles Hartmann of Bakersfield, California, in his charge of being a war-time spy condemned to death, the "Soir" of Brussels began an investigation which has revealed the man so condemned actually was Charles Klemmner, who has yet to be brought to justice.

It is believed that Klemmner remained in France until after the arrest of Bolo. Pacha and Mata Hari, and that a number of occasions prior to the close of the war. The "Soir" states that a woman, Marie Stempel, of Germano-Belgian origin, was responsible for the identification.

Connie Mack His 50 Years in Baseball by Alan Gould

No. 10—Starting Over Again
To almost everyone, apparently, except Connie Mack, there always has seemed something darkly mysterious about the drastic smash-up of the club that captured four pennants and three world's championships.

After the 1914 season and the team's debacle in the world's series with the Braves, Mack suddenly asked waivers on his three pitching aces, Bender, Plank and Coombs, besides subsequently selling Collins, Baker, Barry and other stars.

Many years later, Mack told me he did this, not because the team had become so monotonously good as to lose its drawing power; not because of any suspicion of crookedness or gambling, such as was gossiped about, but solely because of the fresh upheaval in Organized baseball caused by the launching of the outlaw Federal league, and in order to help "save the game."

When the famous "Black Sox" scandal of 1919 revived rumors about the 1914 series, Mack declared himself plainly:

"I almost wish that team never had been broken up. Every time a grandstand, league of nations or poor wheat crop is mentioned, sure enough they asked me whether that was not the reason I broke up the 1914 team. "Gambling had nothing to do with it. Surely the fact that Eddis Collins and Eddis Murphy acted the way they did through the White Sox exposures what kind of men I had on my club."

Child Injured Seriously in Auto-Wagon Collision

PARIS, Sept. 25.—Dorothy Dooley, seven-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Dooley of Subiaco is in a hospital here suffering from serious injuries suffered recently on Highway No. 22, near here, when the automobile in which she was riding collided with a wagon. Her father, mother and uncle, in the car with her, were not hurt. The name of the driver of the wagon was not learned.

Collects Ballads

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 20.—(UP)—Mellinger E. Henry, English teacher of Jersey City, N. J., returned to his work at the end of the summer with a collection of almost 300 songs. In England they have a sensible easy way to get rid of corns in just a few days—a joyous invigorating foot bath every night for 3 or 4 nights—then lift out the corn—out to stay.

the Orioles. It was a veteran team and many of the men began to believe Chance did not know any more about the game than they did. The men gradually drifted away from their leader. The break naturally had to come when that team spirit disappeared.

"Where these teams disintegrated fast, within a year or two after the break, my team was different. None of my boys seemed to have any particular ambitions to be managers. That was probably because they were younger. It is also why my team was the greatest of them all. It could have gone on longer than the other famous machines before it, but it was slowly but surely heading toward the same rocks."

At the age of 52, when most men are ready to retire from baseball, Connie Mack undertook the immense task of complete reconstruction, confident he could again assemble and organize a championship club. He never lost his confidence, even though baseball and world wars made the job one of despair; even though it took him 15 long years to reach baseball's greatest heights again.

Bobby Jones in Quest of Fourth Golf Title

It was a Mr. Jones—Robert T. Jones—who got most of the attention of the gallery as the qualifying rounds of the national amateur golf championship opened at Ardmore, Pa. This picture shows the doughty Georgia links artist, calmly smoking a cigaret on the fairway as he began a march toward what he hoped would be his fourth major golf championship of the year. Marines guarded him from the crowds that swarmed over the Merion Club course.

CELIA ROBERTS just out of high school, suddenly learns that the father she has believed dead is living and a wealthy New York lawyer. The revelation is made when JOHN MITCHELL, the father, calls at the humble apartment in Baltimore where Celia lives with her mother, MARGARET ROBERTS. Margaret tells the girl for the first time that Celia is the daughter of a great fortune. Margaret and John Mitchell were divorced. The second husband, JOHN ROBERTS, has been dead for years.

Mrs. Roberts and Celia have no income but the mother's earnings as a seamstress, though Celia has secured a position as stenographer.

BARNES SHIELDS, young newspaper photographer, is in love with the girl. Mitchell promises to take Celia to New York and offer her a home with luxuries. She refuses, but Mrs. Roberts, knowing her herself is faced with serious illness and loss of work, persuades Celia to accept.

Celia and Shields spend one evening together and in the last evening together, she promises to wait for the day they can be married. The next afternoon, Mitchell calls and tells her for New York, and though Shields has promised to see them off, he does not appear.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XII

CELIA sat primly in her parlor car seat and watched the passing landscape. Mitchell, beside her, nudged the newspaper he was reading. The girl stole a quick glance at him, then turned back to her window.

Green fields. Rows and rows of fence posts. Here and there a farm house. Cattle grazing in pastures. She saw these things through blurred eyes.

Why had Barney Shields not come to the station to say good-by? As long as her eyes were on the flying countryside she could rack her brain for answers and nurse her wounded feelings.

"Would you like something to read?" John Mitchell asked.

"No, thank you."

"H'm!" She was to become familiar with that monosyllable reply, but it held no meaning then. Mitchell folded his own newspaper and laid it beside him. He took a watch from his waistcoat, snapped back the lid and looked at it.

"In three hours," he said, "we'll be in New York. H'm!"

Celia felt that she should say something, but her lips would not move. Two large red circles were burning in her cheeks.

"No. I've no idea what it's like. Tall buildings, I suppose, and noise and everyone hurrying. That's the way I've pictured it. Is it like that?"

Mitchell nodded gravely.

"Yes—at least part of it. You'll find it fairly quiet in my mother's home."

Celia could think of no suitable reply and remained quiet. Her heart was beating rapidly.

"It's an old section of the city," Mitchell went on. "Gramercy Park. Lived there when I was a boy, but

He seemed to forget the girl, losing himself in memories. Celia studied her father's face.

IN a way Mitchell was good looking. There was nothing at all about the man to remind her of herself. Celia thought he had the coldest, most impersonal expression she had ever seen.

"Mother doesn't hear very well," he was saying. "You will have to speak rather loud to make her understand."

"Will I see her this evening?"

"Oh, yes! Certainly. She's been spending the summer in town. Generally goes up in New England, but this year—at least for a time—she's decided to stay in the city."

Celia's misgivings increased. She had not considered the prospect of acquiring a grandmother. Grandmothers, as she pictured them, should be old ladies dressed in lavender with little caps of lace on their heads and spectacles on their noses. She thought of such a grandmother sitting in a rocking chair and knitting.

"Of course she'll see that you meet young people," Mitchell said, as though he had read the girl's thoughts.

There was a pause and the man returned to his newspaper. Celia glanced timidly about the car. She hoped no one would guess that it was her first trip in a parlor car. She eyed the other travelers curiously.

A girl about her own age sat a few seats distant. She had black hair, combed away from her face, and very red lips. She wore a black dress. A young man sat beside the girl and the two were in gales of laughter. "He isn't as good looking as Barney," Celia thought to herself. The thought brought a stab of pain. She turned back to her window and tried to remember all the things Barney had said the night before.

The sun was directly in the west now. A white-clad colored man came through the car, announcing that dinner was served. A man and two women arose and followed him.

Mitchell asked Celia if she would like to dine. She said she was not hungry.

The little watch on the girl's wrist told her that it was six o'clock. Her mother would be getting her evening meal. What was she cooking? It made Celia sad to think of her mother alone at the table where the two of them had always sat. She wondered how Mrs. Roberts would spend the evening.

A little later Mitchell led the way to the dining car. Celia was impressed by the array of silver and linen and the heavy trays the waiters bore so easily. She could not conceal her wonder at this traveling restaurant.

Her father ordered. He was insistent in directing that the steak should not be over-done and that the cheese must be well ripened.

He seemed to forget the girl, losing himself in memories. Celia studied her father's face.

EVERYWHERE Mitchell seemed to receive the same prompt deference Celia noted. It made him more awe-inspiring than before.

She had little to say as the meal was served. Her father ate heartily. After one or two attempts at conversation he devoted himself to the food.

Shadows lengthened on the countryside as the train sped by. When they had finished eating and were back in the parlor car dusk had fallen. There was nothing to be seen outside the windows now. Celia selected a magazine and tried to entertain herself.

She was surprised when Mitchell touched her arm.

"Almost there," he said. "Are you ready?"

"You mean we're in New York?"

"No, no! Have to cross the river yet. This is Jersey City. We change to the bus here."

Some of the women in the car were putting on coats and hats. Celia took the tiny vanity case from her purse, patted her nose with powder and pulled on her gloves.

The conductor's shout rang through the car.

"All out!"

The girl scrambled to her feet, followed closely behind her father in the press toward the door of the car, then across the pavement to the long line of waiting motor coaches.

"This our bus?"

"Yes, sir. Twenty-third street!" the uniformed attendant answered. Mitchell helped Celia into the coach.

"Short ride now," he said. "Be home in half an hour."

She watched with wide eyes as the coach was driven on the ferry boat. Suddenly before her loomed the horizon of New York.

"Over there!" her father nodded. "That's the city."

Celia leaned forward and studied the panorama. Towers, spires and squat lower outlines darkly visible against the gray sky. Flashes of gold glinting from myriads of windows. The dark, wide expanse of water between. Brightly lit river craft drifting by, signaling one another by moaning whistles.

"New York!" Celia breathed the words softly.

The ferry was moving now.

"Like to get outside and look around?" Mitchell asked.

She said that she would. Others in the coach were leaving to find places for themselves against the boat's rail. The wind whipped against the girl's cheeks and unconsciously she braced herself. Mitchell named some of the more impressive buildings as they passed.

Celia barely heard his voice. She was lost in the majesty of the metropolis. Its hugeness was thrilling, mysterious, stirring.

LATER when they left the motor coach for a taxicab and went whirling through crowded streets this spirit of adventure departed. New York close at hand seemed to look like any other city.

She was surprised when the cab halted.

"Here we are," said Mitchell.

Celia stepped to the pavement and looked up at the old-fashioned house. It was too dark to see the building clearly, but it was impressive in spite of taller dwellings on either side.

Slowly she climbed the steps after her father. The front door opened, letting out a blinding flood of electricity.

"All right, Edward. Take these bags, will you?"

Mitchell was speaking to the servant who had opened the door. He dismissed the taxi driver and followed Celia into the hallway.

"Mrs. Mitchell is in the drawing room, sir," the gray-haired Edward said, pausing with the traveling cases in his arms.

"We'll go right in," Mitchell nodded toward Celia.

He led the way into a vast, gleaming room. This girl on the threshold caught a swift vision of crystal lights, mirrored mantelpiece, ornate furniture and maroon hangings. She stood quite still.

"Well, mother, we're here!"

A tall woman dressed in black silk rose from a chair across the room. She had white hair, combed back from her forehead, and arranged in a twist on top of her head. She was a large woman, the uniformed attendant answered, stiffly erect and with an air of tremendous dignity. She did not smile, but her gaze shifted immediately from the man to Celia.

"So this is the child!"

The elderly woman's voice was sharp, high-pitched. "Come nearer," she went on, and there was no doubt that she addressed Celia.

Hesitantly the girl moved forward.

"Yes, this is Celia," John Mitchell said. "Celia—your grandmother."

Celia put out her hand.

"How do you do?" she said in a voice that trembled.

For a full second she felt Mrs. Thomas Worthington Mitchell's scrutiny. Then the proffered hand was accepted.

"How do you do?" Mrs. Mitchell said, in the same sharp voice. "I hope you'll like your new home. Don't see that you look much like the Mitchells."

The butler's appearance in the hall doorway interrupted her words.

"Well, Edward?" Mrs. Mitchell asked.

"Excuse me, ma'am. There's someone on the telephone asking for Mr. Mitchell. They said it's important."

of the smaller republics south of the equator. The committee is studying advisability of disposing of this difficulty with one gesture by purchasing a number of all the required flags and reselling them to merchants along the Avenue de l'Opera and the Grands Boulevards.

Another and even more obvious criticism concerns lack of coordination and preparation, which it is felt can be remedied easily enough by an early start. As a matter of fact the whole idea of a "Semaine Americaine" popped into the heads of some of the leaders of the Comite France-America just a few weeks before it was tried, so that the results were far from discouraging under the circumstances.

More attention will be paid in future to the program, also. The theatres

French Planning Tourist's Week

Success of First Effort to Set Tourist Exodus Back Is Applauded

PARIS, Sept. 25.—(UP)—Convinced that their "Semaine Americaine" was a good idea which can be improved upon, the French already are making plans for the 1931 week which will follow the traditional "Grande Semaine" and push the summer exodus back eight days.

Criticism has been generous, and a committee has been appointed to weigh some of the most pertinent. For one thing, attention has been called to the fact that not enough South American flags were in evidence this year. The Star Spangled Banner is no longer a curiosity in France, and indeed is displayed on the slightest pretext in the capital. But the populace is unfamiliar with the colors of Brazil and Argentina, to say nothing will be asked to turn their attention more completely on the theme of the week, wound about the independence days of the American republics. Restaurants and dine-dance places will be urged to feature American dishes.

"Metal Lung" Keeps Girl Alive

For more than a week, Frances McGaan, Chicago student nurse who is suffering from infantile paralysis, has been kept alive by a "metal lung" like the one shown above. Unable to breathe because her chest muscles are paralyzed, the girl is kept constantly in the big aluminum tank, where an electric pump alternately creates air pressure and a vacuum, forcing her lungs to function. The tank photographed here is known as the Drinker Apparatus.

In addition each day will be liberally sprinkled with affairs sponsored by the Comite France-America.

Summing up the remarkable possibilities of the venture, one Paris newspaper remarks that the French are actually rendering a service to their neighbors from across the Atlantic.

"It is easier," the writer points out, "for an Argentine to visit Paris than to visit Bogota; and yet he will invariably make Colombian friends in the French capital. As it is true that residents of Lyons never encounter the Lyons except in Paris, so it is becoming increasingly true that Paris is the capital of South America and North America, uniting Buenos Aires and Rio and Chicago and New York at the Place de l'Opera."

Man Believed Buried as Vet Returns Home

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—(UP)—Last Friday the mangled body of a man killed in an automobile accident was buried in Arlington national cemetery with full military honors as that of Robert J. Marcey, 32-year-old war veteran after identification by Marcey's parents and his eight brothers and sisters.

Wednesday the veteran was back home with his family at Lynchburg, Va., while the war department and veterans bureau were trying to determine the identity of the stranger buried as Marcey.

with Praline, just granted a license by the police. The boy's father, who is English, is employed by a local petroleum company and the boy goes to a local school.

During vacations he works as an interpreter, going aboard the big American and other English-speaking boats who do not understand French.

Search Georgia Swamp For Unknown Negro

THOMASVILLE, Ga., Sept. 25.—(UP)—A crowd of several hundred men was reported searching a swampy tract here for an unidentified negro who yesterday attacked a nine-year-old white girl on her way home from school. Officers reported that highways in the vicinity of the swamp were closed with automobiles.

Ends Piles Quick

Pile suffers can only get quick, safe and lasting relief by removing the cause—bad circulation of the blood in the lower bowel. Cutting and external remedies can't do this—internal medicine must be used. HEM-ROID, the prescription of Dr. J. S. Leonard, a specialist, succeeds, because it relieves this blood congestion and strengthens the affected parts. HEM-ROID is sold by druggists everywhere, and has such a wonderful record of success right in this city that Ward & Son says to every pile sufferer: try HEM-ROID at any risk. It must end all pile agony as you get your money back.

First Home Game Friday
Education day—Friday—will probably see the largest crowd of the week gathered at the fair grounds, with the first home game of the football season scheduled at 10:30 o'clock in the morning. Friday afternoon has been declared a half-holiday for Hope. Hope High School meets Magnolia High School in the morning game, while for the afternoon contest Magnolia A. & M. will take the field against Texarkana Junior College. There is little hope available on this year's high school team at Magnolia, but it is always a factor in football in the southwestern counties. The Hope High School team, with nearly 40 men in the squad, showing to good advantage in the opening game at Ashdown last Friday, winning on foreign territory 19 to 0.

In the senior game, between Magnolia and Texarkana, Magnolia would ordinarily be given the edge, as the Mulieriders rate as one of the most powerful junior college eleven in the state. But Texarkana upset the dope last week by murdering the El Dorado Junior College team 104 to 0. Whether this means anything by comparison with Magnolia A. & M. will be determined when the teams meet Friday afternoon.

Relief From Curse of Constipation

A Battle Creek physician says, "Constipation is responsible for more misery than any other cause."

But immediate relief has been found. A tablet called Rexall Orderlies has been discovered. This tablet attracts water from the system into the lazy, dry, evacuating bowel called the colon. The water loosens the dry food waste and causes a gentle, thorough, natural movement without forming a habit or ever increasing the dose.

Stop suffering from constipation. Chew a Rexall Orderly at night. Next day bright. Get 24 for 25¢ today at the nearest Rexall Drug Store. John S. Gibson Drug Co. Adv.

"WILL ALWAYS HAVE KONJOLA IN MY HOME"

Little Rock Lady Relieved Severe Ailments Through Use of New Medicine

MRS. ELLEN GWATNEY
"I suffered from stomach, liver and kidney trouble and medicines gave me little help," said Mrs. Ellen Gwatney, 203 North Izard street, Little Rock. "I did not enjoy my meals and distress followed whenever I ate. I was unable to rid myself of constipation no matter how many laxatives I took. Severe abdominal pains bothered me constantly and my liver was sluggish and inactive. I felt tired and worn-out all the time and despaired of being able to do my household work again."

"My daughter insisted that I give Konjola a trial but I was not looking for the results I obtained. Konjola went right to the seat of my troubles. My appetite improved and foods that I dared not eat before now digest readily. Stomach trouble is a thing of the past, the pain has left and I am in good health again. My liver and bowels function properly and I can do my household work with pleasure. My little daughter is taking Konjola with the same marvelous results."

Konjola is compounded of 32 ingredients, 22 of which are the juices of well-known medical roots and herbs. It is free from alcohol, nerve-deadening drugs or heart-depressing chemicals.

Konjola is sold in Hope at Bryant's Drug Store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section. Adv.
